

COLOUR BRAIN

Video Call Ready Instructions

Colourbrain is another easy one to play over video conferencing. In some ways it's even more fun. (You'll see!) Before you set up a call with your mates, don't forget to read the rules in the game beforehand or watch the how to play video on YouTube. Once you've explained the premise of the game to them, follow these simple instructions:

- 1 - The person who owns the game (you, good taste by the way) will be the Question Wrangler and Keeper-of-Scores for the whole game. But you can also play along too.
- 2 - Now tell each team to run off and find 11 items, each representing the 11 coloured answers in Colourbrain. They'll need something red, orange, yellow, green, blue, pink, purple, brown, black, grey and white. (Might be a good idea to text them this beforehand so they don't wander off for hours looking for something purple!)
- 3 - Teams keep these 11 objects out of camera shot. (You'll see why in a minute.)
- 4 - Now read out a question card and show it to the screen. (If you're playing along too, then be careful not to see the answer on the back.)
- 5 - Teams have 30 seconds to select the colour or colours in their answer.
- 6 - The Question Master now counts down from three and all the teams reveal the coloured objects in their answer at once by bringing them into shot.
- 7 - The Question Master awards any points. (See the written rules for scoring.)
- 8 - Keep playing like this until one team wins 10 points.
